

Dear People Concerned About Our Rights to Choose Health Over Microwave Radiation . . .

Exposure: There is presently a petition by the CTIA (formerly know as the Cellular Telephone Industries Association) - but now known as "CTIA - The Wireless Associaton" - to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to further limit a community's say over the limited zoning authority they still have of cell phone base station and antenna installation in the USA. (Citizen's rights to protect their health from microwave radiation were already extremely curtailed in the unconstitutional and undemocratic Federal Communications Act of 1996 - also predominantly authored by the Cellular Telephone Industries Association.)

As Janet Newton of the EMR-Network writes:

It is crucial for you as individuals and for your local government officials to speak up against the CTIA Petition now before the Federal Communications Commission.

Submit your comment by September 29, 2008 as an individual citizen to oppose the wireless industry's Petition at the FCC to further limit local zoning authority over antenna siting decisions. You can submit your comment as an individual who has an opinion on the need to protect the rights of your local government to decide where wireless transmitters sites should be placed in your community.

Further information is given by the law firm of Miller and Van Eaton in Washington DC. (Choose the link on the right under "Hot Topics" entitled "FCC Issues Two-Week Extension of Dates for Comments on CTIA Petition for Regulation of Local Tower Zoning Decisions.")

Since more and more people world-wide are becoming aware of the severe health dangers these base stations pose to a community, the CTIA is simply attempting to attain an unhindered power to quickly and efficiently erect base stations wherever they like before this increasing number of people (and governments) who are becoming aware of the dangers start to take action, since once they are up it becomes that much more difficult to legally take them down.

The CTIA made a similar attempt in the fall of 1997 to completely remove all zoning authority over cell-phone base station sites in the USA. (See "National Zoning Nanny" for the history.) However, a letter writing campaign from US citizens was fortunately able to block this and the FCC did not grant the CTIA their wish.

As Janet Newton further writes, Action is Urgently Needed Now:

The same effort is needed now. Submit your Comment by September 29, 2008. In - Box 1. Proceeding - type 08-165. Fill out the rest of the form as it applies to you as an individual. You can attach your Comment as a PDF document, or you can type your comment directly into the box at the bottom of that page.

In addition, as Miller and Van Eaton advises, urge your local municipal officers to participate in the joint filing that MVE is preparing:

It appears that CTIA senses a void in local government concerns and hopes it can get the FCC to act before local governments can mount an effective defense. We recommend immediate action to oppose CTIA's petition. Local government needs a cogent and comprehensive response to the FCC. Please contact MVE if your community will participate in a coalition effort to fight this CTIA attack on local zoning.

Urge your local municipal officers to contact:

Jim Hobson jhobson@millervaneaton.com or Rick Ellrod fellrod@millervaneaton.com or by phone at: 202-785-0600.

If people do not act now to stop this we will be seeing an increasing number of people sick and an increasing disappearance of wildlife - which is already happening all over the world.

Testimony :

I was made extremely sick from living within 300 meters of two cell-phone base stations. I developed a host of bizarre symptoms including insomnia, fatigue, inability to concentrate or remember things, a weakened immune system, swollen lymph nodes, chronic diarrhea, nausea, anxiety attacks, loss of appetite and rapid weight loss. It took me six months before I was even able to imagine the cause.

When I removed myself from this place and found a log house up in the mountains with no TV or cell phone coverage, 50% of my symptoms disappeared within 24 hours. It took another 2 months before I was able to get off sleeping pills and another 4 months for my body to be about 80% better. I had what is conventionally called "Chronic Fatigue Syndrome" (CFS) in the US or "Myalgic Encephalomyelitis" (ME) in the UK. However, the symptoms are more appropriately in line to what is has been called "Microwave Sickness."

The research I looked at with regards to how microwave and other forms of electromagnetic radiation (EMR) affect human and animal physiology and biology can perfectly explain all of the symptoms and abnormalities found in CFS/ME.

Furthermore, there are numerous research studies that show that people living around these cell phone base stations start to exhibit these symptoms and then that after a few years cancer clusters start to form. What the CTIA - The Wireless Association is doing and has been doing is absolutely criminal. These people should be charged with first-degree murder!!! They should absolutely not be given more power! In fact, the power that was allotted them by the Federal Communication Act of 1996 should be completely rescinded.

As more and more people become aware of the dangers posed by this technology, the FCC will also be held accountable - unless they start to act now in the people's interest. The longer you wait, the more wrath you will incur. It is now time to get on the other side of the fence and do something about this extremely serious problem!!!

More and more young people are suffering of Chronic Fatigue.
